SUFFERING AMONG THE POOR OF THE CITY

Cold Weather Throws Many Out of Work.

APPLICATIONS FOR CHARITY

Secretary Weller, of Associated Charities, Appeals to Citizens for Assistance and Occupation for the Needy-Some Worthy Cases,

The continued cold weather in Washington and the surrounding country has made double work for the Associated Charities for the past week or ten days.

The recent cold snap has thrown ou of employment many day workmen and laborers. Especially has it crippled those who find their daily livelihood in outdoor work, such as painters, carpenters, and laborers.

The inclement weather has stopped very nearly all building operations. It has also stopped all work upon the street improvements, where employment is found for thousands of the poorer class of the inhabitants of Washington.

This latter class are unable to save anything for a rainy day. And when they are thrown out of employment, as is the case at present, they must call upon more fortunate ones for relief. The first persons to whom these people turn are the Associated Charities.

Laboring Class Apply.

Among those who called at the rooms of the Associated Charities yesterday were carpenters, painters, laborers, and colored women who were bent double with rheumatism. Some of them have on decent clothes, while others were practically in rags. All these are subjects for the ald of the Associated Charities.

One of the greatest difficulties with which the association is confronted is when a man who has never appealed to charity before comes to it for relief. The man generally has some pride about the matter. Occasionally, that self-respect is so injured that it becomes dead, and he is very apt to call more frequently than necessity demands.

Mr. Weller, secretary of the Associated Charities, believes that if he could place workmen in a position to do odd jobs until their misfortune is ended that it would their misfortune is ended that it would relieve the situation to a great extent. He therefore has made an appeal to the residents of Washington that whenever they have any odd jobs that they want done around the house to notify one of the officers of the association, and they will send some one around to look after it.

He states that these little jobs would not only be help to the man himself, but also to the association, as it would be equal to giving him so much money, and would be that much saved to the association.

Washington Divided Of.

Washington is divided into six districts by the Charities, and in each district there is a branch office. The central office is situated in the first district, at $11 G Street northwest. The first district is perhaps the busiest of them all. It is surprising to know how much suffering there is in this part of the city.

It includes the greater portion of the rich people of the District. Yet right alongside of the rich there are the poor. Within three or four squares of one of the bon-ton sections of the city there is one of the poorest sections. In this section the association does its greatest One of the cases in which the secretary of the association is especially interest-ed, and which shows the kind of work the Associated Charities is doing, is in the case of a young boy. He lives with to earn more than a livelihood. The boy

G. D. Emery, a prominent attorney of Minneapolis, at the Fairfax, "swear by the 'Little Norwegian,' as they affectionately style their senior Senator. Hon. Knute Nelson. Some friend made a play of words when he referred to the fact that Nelson came to the United States on an immigrant ship, but that he would be sent to Washington on a Sent-torship.

"In his last campaign, he was elected by a practically unanimous vote. He is of the best type of modern statesmanship. I do not believe there is a man in the nation that has a strong a hold on the affections of the common people. His honesty is of that rugged type that lifts him even above the suspicion of wrong-doing, and his soul is engrossed with the single purpose of faithful performance of duty."

Florida Hopes for Oil and Gas.

Hon: E. B. Bailey, of Monticello, one of the leading Democrats of Florida, stood in the lobby of the National, conversing with Col. Samuel Donelson, of Tennessec. The gentlemen are cousins; their maternal grandfather was Governor Branch, who was Chief Executive, both of Florida and Tennessee, and who was Secretary of War in the Cabinet of President Andrew Jackson.

Mr. Bailey was in the State Senate when Senator Mallory was elected, and he expects to vote for him again for the place he now occupies. He did more than all the rest of the opponents of Mr. Pasco to keep that gentleman from further service in the United States Senate. "I think at no distant day," he remarked to a reporter for The Times, "that there will be great discoveries of oil and natural gas in my section of Fiorida. There are places on my plantation where the gas comes out of the ground in such the gas comes out of the ground in such volume that it can be readily ignited. It will be a great thing for the State if we can develop enough for manufacturing purposes. Florida is extremely backward, industrially, and although it produces a great deal of cotton, there is not a single away the trade that leading to take cotton mill in the State.

Creek Governor Opposes Indian

Statchood. The Governor of the Creek Indians, Gen eral Porter, is a guest of the National. Were it not for his complexion, which has the copper tint of his tribe, he would be readily taken for a prosperous Southern planter. He speaks excellent English, and can tell a capital story.

"I think," said the general, "that it is best to postpone the question of statehood, so far as the Indian Territory is concerned. It is premature, and I know that the feel-ing with the Creeks is that it is better to let the matter rest for a while. Statehood will come eventually, but we are not ripe for it at present."

Tennesseeans Need the Washing.

High Tribute to Senator Knute justified, from their point of view, in objecting to this laundry innovation. From time immemorial their women folk have done the washing of the students by hand, and their action in objecting to having this source of revenue cut off was perfectly natural. "My own opinion is that the best thing that can be done is to effect a compromise whereby the refugees may come back in safety and resume their instructions with the understanding that the laundry is not to be put in operation. The march of im-provement is all right, but the moutain-eers of Tennessee are wedded to the old ways, and it doesn't do to be too brash in overturning ancient customs.

"Before we actually tried it in South Carolina a great many people believed that the election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people would be a great improvement over the old way," said Mr. William D. Morgan, mayor of Georgetown, S. C., at the Raleigh.

"But like many other supposed reforms it was far better as a theory than it panned out when put into practice. For one, I don't consider that the State has benefited one total by the change.

"We have a Senatorial campaign on now, and it will develop in intensity until the election, next August. There are numerous candidates who will take the field at a time of year when the hot weather renders such work exceedingly weather renders such work exceedingly weather renders such work exceedingly trying, and a big tax on the strength of the principals. It is a busy time for the farmers, too, and many of them will not leave their fields to listen to the speeches or to cast their ballots. It wouldn't be surprising if public sentiment didn't eventually demand a return to the old method."

Upholds Present Customs Law.

"There should be no change in the law which limits the purchase of undutiable goods bought in Europe by American tourists to $100," said Mr. C. C. Shayne, president of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Board of Trade, in conversation with "People ought not to be allowed to take away the trade that legitimately belongs to our home merchants. The principal thing to be done is to educate the public—the rich public that travels in the old rich public that travels in the old world with season-like regularity-to re-spect and fear the law, so that they will make honest declarations as to the goods honest declarations as to the goods make nonest declarations as to the goods they are bringing home. If a few swell citizens who have made false declara-tions as to their possessions could be convicted and sent to prison it would have a healthy effect on the nation."

Crow Indians' Taste in Hair Styles. "The great Crow reservation is situated not far from my home," said Mr. E. H. Becker, editor of the "Billings (Mon.) Daily Gazette," at the Cochran. "The Crows are anything but dudish in their attire, preferring blankets to coats and trousers, and they have an idea that long hair is better calculated to set off

"I note that some of the mountain people of my State have been making a rough house because of the action of the faculty of Sewance University in building a laundry for the students," remarked Col. Arch Hughes, of Tennessee, at the Ebbitt.

"The unthinking reader who saw the press despatches of the destruction of the pale-face point of view, but It is useless, at this stage of the game, to try to convince the red man of his error in a matter of taste. I take it, therefore, that the order from Washington requiring the Indians to submit to the shears will evoke natural resentment. The bucks are built that way. They are as devoted press despatches of the destruction of the laundry by the country people and of the flight of two of the professors, who feared bodily harm at the hands of the rural population, may imagine that the mountaineers are opposed to the progressive spirit of the age. I will not go to their defence on this point, but they were will get very tired before they proceed far. So far as the Crous their defence on this point, but they were

Look carefully into the state of health of the individual who knows that "coffee don't hurt me," and you are almost sure to find some form of physical all or functional disturbance—me." and you are almost sure to find some form of physical all or functional disturbance—perhaps muddy complexion, or weak eyes, incipient heart failure, kidney trouble, liver or bowel disorders, or some form of weakness that shows plainly enough by the cry for relief sent up from some organ of the body.

Why does the dismissal of Coffee and the use of Postum bring help? Experiments in artificial digestion show clearly to the scientific investigator that coffee arrests digestion, and according to one authority, allows only 61 per cent. of the food to be digested. That strikes at the very keystone to the arch of health. Failure in digestion means lack of good blood, and therefore a lack of food for the nerve centres. As the nerves control the organs of the entire body, one can readily understand that a disorganized nervous system may show effect in any part of the body. Therefore, a removal of the cat le will allow nature to right herself. A powerful assistant to nature is Postum Cereal Food Coffee, composed of the albumen, phosphates, gitten, etc., from which nature builds in the delicate tissues of the nerves.

Postum aids digestion without drugging, and furnishes a concentrated liquid food as well as a most delicious morning Coffee.

If the reader has ever failed to make Postum sansfactorily, it will be found that to allow it to boil 15 minutes after boiling commences, will solve the problem, as it must be so boiled to extract taste, color and food value. Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.
